

Welcome Steve Fenlon

Victoria Hospital in East Grinstead where I have worked for over 16 years. I have had a fantastic time at QVH and I leave an excellent, caring Trust and many brilliant and compassionate colleagues. DGT has a reputation as a well-managed, high performing, caring organisation with the interests of its patient's, community and staff at heart as reflected in the results it achieves. I realise DGT and the services it provides are different from QVH, but I see this as an opportunity to work in the wider role of NHS acute providers and use my experience to learn and contribute towards meeting the many challenges we all face together."

Steve qualified from Nottingham Medical School in 1988 and after working in House Officer posts, pursued

The Trust has appointed Steve Fenlon as its new Medical Director. Steve currently works at Queen Victoria Hospital NHS Trust as Medical Director and will join Dartford and Gravesham NHS Trust (DGT) in the autumn. Annette Schreiner, who has served as Medical Director since February 2010, will retire from the position in September 2016.

Steve Fenlon said: "I am delighted the panel saw fit to offer me the job and I am looking forward to taking up the post later this year."

"I am currently Medical Director at Queen

a career in General Practice in Medway and Kent, completing the Vocational Training Course in 1993. He then decided to return to hospital medicine training in anaesthesia at Nottingham and South East England. He completed his training at Guys Hospital in 2000. He was then appointed Consultant Anaesthetist at Queen Victoria Hospital NHS Foundation Trust where he took on the role of Clinical Lead for Paediatrics. Later he became Clinical Director for the Clinical Support Services, an amalgam of specialities and in 2013, Steve was appointed Medical Director for QVH.
